

The Problem

Organizations have many processes that collect data using paper or fillable documents. Hundreds of documents with rules, regulations, and laws that govern data collection are manually managed. These processes can't adjust for unique differences in process, rules, personnel, or action to be taken.

The Solution

We designed and implemented a flexible, automated document-based business process. Every document is mapped, each field becoming an element to be used to build intelligent interviews. Required info is collected once. Use one system for all your document-based needs. Every piece of info collected is a unique data field and can be shared with other solutions, databases, and systems of record.
